A worshipping family of believers in Jesus Christ committed to understanding, living and sharing His message of hope for all people.

Jesus Makes Us What We Are Not

“Jesus makes us what we are not” is a line from the script of The Chosen by Dallas Jenkins. What a poignant truth. Think of it. We are not holy; we are not selfless; we are not pure; we are not worthy; we are not lovely. In fact, we are selfish, sinful, unworthy of heaven, separated from God. We are tainted; we are mortal. Yet, when we choose to follow Christ, He declares us holy, righteous, worthy, children of the Heavenly Father.

He changed a demon possessed prostitute into a devoted follower who shared the transformation with friends. He called rough and insolent fishermen and transformed them into proclaimers of the Gospel. Through His friendship and calling, a hated, cheating tax collector became author of the opening of the New Testament.

How has Christ made you what you are not? How has He transformed you, and more importantly, how are you allowing Him to continue to transform you into His image?

Isn’t that the point? It is easy to put on the façade of churchgoer for an hour each Sunday. We can dress the part, speak the language and play the role for a short time, but that doesn’t make us His or holy. However, when we hear the call and choose to follow, Christ makes us what we are not. He not only declares us righteous, but along the way He transforms us little by little into His character if we let Him.

Let us be about following Him so we can be made into “what we are not” by His love and grace. Don’t settle for being who you think you are in your eyes but for being who you are in the eyes of Christ.

Be Transformed,
Terry

We are Hiring

The position of church receptionist has become vacant following the retirement of Sophie Woodruff. The church is accepting resumes to fill this full time staff position. Duties include administrative assistant to Terry Richey, church clerk (taking minutes at meetings), receptionist, proofreading documents, updating the prayer list, coordinating information with the church financial secretary, and various other duties. Familiarity with office machines and computers is needed. The most important quality is a pleasant disposition and smiling face to all who enter and contact the church by phone or email. Please forward resumes to Paul McLendon at pmclendon@shbc.cc.
